

STATINTL

CIA Aide Named to Lead Arlington School Board

John Reed Spicer, an administrator in the Central Intelligence Agency, was elected chairman of the Arlington County School Board last night at the Board's organizational meeting for the 1965-66 school year. James G. Stockard was elected vice-chairman.

Spicer, appointed to the Board in January, 1964, succeeds out-going chairman Laszlo L. Ecker-Racz. Spicer, 57, has an extensive background in educational administration.

From 1931 to 1945, he was an instructor and administrator at Alfred University, Before taking a Government post in 1951, he was dean of the College of Liberal Arts at Ohio's Kent State University.

Spicer is a former president of the Woodlawn Elementary School P-TA, and a former executive committee member of the Stratford Junior High School P-TA. He is the author of a text book, "English in Business and Engineering." Married and the father of four children, Spicer lives at 2324 N. Jackson st., Arlington.

Stockard, 50, is a former chairman of the School Board and has served the longest of the five members. Once a high school teacher, he now is chief of the public administration training division of the Agency for International Development. He lives with his wife and two children at 5920 N. Washington blvd., Arlington.